ISO SHIPPING CONTAINER

ISO container is any type of shipping container that is designed, manufactured, tested and certified to the standards of the International Standards Organisation in terms of size, strength, and durability. They are manufactured from a special compound of steel known as Corten steel developed to give the best protection around the elements.

Trademarked as COR-TEN, but more commonly known as weathering steel because of its resistance to atmospheric corrosion compared to other steels. Because shipping containers are constantly exposed to the atmospheric weathering, including seawater since their intended use is for multimodal transportation methods including rail, road or sea freight.

SHIPPING CONTAINERS

Standard Containers are primarily used for the storage and transportation of goods. Their application varies greatly and can be used both domestically and industrially to store and/or items such as machinery, tools, personal items and much more.
